Matrix yachts is a family-owned company in South Africa that focuses on building huge catamarans for charter and private use. The business opened in September 2001 and employs a staff of about 30 full-time workers. Their first project, the largest catamaran ever made in South Africa on a dedicated production line, the Akasha, was recently completed.

The new owner will use the boat for charter and private use. Prospective owners of a Matrix Yacht can customise the interior and the design includes a large kitchen, four cabins with en-suites. Their website (luxist.com) has many beautiful images of the 76-foot yacht. The interior is full of light wood for a an airy effect.
